“ Bene and I played a lot of pool together and I will always remember the times we played as partners together in various places. We at times were hard to beat and when we did get beat he would always say we'll get them next time. It seemed like no matter where we played we were always among friends. I'll have to say this but one time I was playing another person and was kind of in a jam and then Bene walked in and everything started going good, because you see I was a stranger to everyone there and when Bene walked in everyone knew him as a friend and he let them know I was his nephew and not to give me any trouble and they didn't. Bene I love you and will miss you and will without a doubt always think of you when I pick up a pool cue. Play well in heaven and don't beat dad too bad because he along with you taught me how to play. God bless you and one day we will play again. Love you.
