

Burle Pettit

July 26, 1934 - May 29, 2022

Emory "Burle" Pettit was born July 26, 1934 in Moran , TX to John Pettit and Hazel Pettit. On May 29, 1957, he was married to Clara Frances Hill and passed away exactly 65 years later on their wedding anniversary. Burle received his Bachelor's Degree from the University of North Texas. He served in the U.S. Army from 1955-1956. Burle Pettit, whose eloquent writing and effective leadership entertained Lubbock Avalanche-Journal readers and influenced its journalists for more than five decades, died early Sunday. He was 87.

Pettit joined the newspaper as a sports writer in 1960 and steadily climbed the newsroom's organizational ladder, holding positions of sports editor, managing editor and culminating in his being appointed executive editor Jan. 1, 1995. He retired from that position five years later. Following retirement, he was named the paper's editor emeritus with his name appearing on the A-J opinion page masthead. He also continued to write a highly popular column, occasionally turning the writing duties over to his pet dog, Schnopper. During his storied career, Burle was recognized with state and national journalism honors.

In 2019, a collection of Pettit's Avalanche-Journal columns was published in the book: "A Boyhood Dream Realized: Half a Century of Texas Culture, One Newspaper Column at a Time." That same year, he was recognized by the Lubbock chapter of the Association for Women in Communications with the Mary Ann Edwards Outstanding Professional Communicator award.

Burle is survived by sons Kevin of Canyon Lake, Kyle of Lubbock and daughter-in-law Norma, Scott of Fair Oaks Ranch and daughter-in-law Michelle Pettit; six grandchildren Gary, Kasey, Morgan (Hammond), Christopher, Kendall, and Hayden; six great-grandchildren (Moiija, Hanna Beth, Addi, Zoe, Harper, and Hudson).

“ I had been a rookie reporter at the A-J a year or so when Burle arrived in 1960 to work on the sports side across the newsroom. I remember him as being quiet, courteous and clearly dedicated to his work. but located as we did in different departments, we seldom associated. He sometimes did join in one of our small stakes poker games after midnight when we had put the next day's paper "to bed," prepared for the printing presses to spin it all out. Flash forward twenty-nine years and Burle was to play an instrumental role in my career. I left the A-J in 1962 and wound spending a quarter century in Washington as a correspondent for the Associated Press and later Reuters. Burle was in line to become editor when I decided I wanted to return to my native West Texas and the A-J. I have no doubt that he had to put the blessing on my return to Lubbock, and for that I will always be grateful. He became was a wise counselor to me over the years, particularly when age and hard-living began to have negative effects on my performance. I resigned in frustration. Burle made no effort to dissuade me from quitting. I realize now that it was the best decision for us both. Thank you, Burle. God rest your good soul.

“ If you ever met him, you would have liked him immediately for his gentleman's demeanor and sense of humor. Then, if you're like me, about 40 years later when his credentials are spread out in the A-J, you would realize that he was also a very humble man - I'm just now realizing that he never talked about himself. I knew more about his family than him. Still, I considered it a special treat just to talk to him.

I retired from the A-J in 2015 after a cumulative 32 years and since then, I have contacted him on several occasions for facts and/or his memory of events - he was always so nice to help and always had the answer.

What a long wonderful career for a really nice guy. R.I.P. my friend.
