Difficult to watch through the tears but what a wonderful tribute to a life well lived by a man so full of life. I know the family here finds it difficult to let go as he will be so missed but I know the family already in heaven is rejoicing and having a "Welcome Home" party for him today.

Debbie -- Sorry to see this posted today. I have so many memories of of you and Freddy from our years at Tech and my years of friendship with the Warrens. May your memories bring you Joy and God bring you peace in this difficult time.

*With Sympathy and Love,
Nell*

I remember several of these photos. Smiling as I browse through them but also teary-eyed. I tried to share an earlier memory, not sure it went through. I remember as kids when I lived with them, Freddy always going to the Boys Club and he had a wealth of friends. I remember making him and Brenda play school with me (not their favorite thing to do but Mamaw made them play with me!). He had a big blackboard on the wall in his room and I loved it! I even gave them homework! He was so funny and brought a lot of laughter. He was more like a big brother than an uncle with less than 2 years difference in our ages. I'm sad i can't physically be there today...but I am there. God bless you Freddy. I know you will liven things up in heaven for the family that has gone on and greeting you there! I know they were happy to see you even if we didn't want to let go of you here. Condolences to Debbie, the kids and all the grandkids.
