I didn't know Gloria all that well personally but we knew each other from a distance. Guess you could say we were frenemies. We liked to hate each other... she once told me. We were at odds with each other over something so frivolous. When we once had a conversation, we both agreed that had we met under different circumstances we probably would have been good friends. I learned about her passing just recently and although things were the way they were I was saddened to hear the news. It was a life taken too soon for all those that knew her and I'm sorry that we never got to meet again under better circumstances. RIP GIRL
