“ Ina and I used to go on rescue visits to inactive church members on Saturdays and one time as we were heading for east Lubbock, she asked me if I was "packing heat". Of course I laughed and thought it was a joke until she said that Ken had given her a new gun for her birthday and it was in the van with us! When we got to our destination, a house with a chain link fence in front, a couple of pit bulls and two men sitting on the stoop, one of the men looked at Ina and said he thought he knew her from somewhere and had she ever been to prison. I knew both men, who used to work at the Lubbock State School before they became prison guards and they just wanted to tease her! We both told that story many times and always laughed over it. I loved Ina and Ken and am happy they are together again. Liz (Smitten) Wilde
