“ One of my first friends I met at the age of 12 when I moved to Lubbock. The first and only kid that would insist on carrying my books to class for me. I'm going to miss the all the laughs and all the hugs. Most importantly, I'll miss all the years of loyalty! Rest in Paradise, TJ.

“ I worked with TJ in Pecos. He was a good friend and even better paramedic. I have a couple great stories I would love to share. One night, heavy rain poured onto Pecos. It was cold, wet and miserable, and as our luck would have it... we were in the thick of it. TJ and I were summoned to a small tent city for a welfare check. We learned the caller was sleeping in a leaky tent and in the worst way. He refused ambulance transport, he was worried someone would steal what little possessions he had. After we cleared TJ requested we go to Wal Mart before returning to the station. TJ purchased, a jacket, boots and some food. We returned to the encampment and found the homeless guy. TJ gave him the jacket, boots, and food. TJ made me promise to keep his good deed quiet. My second story is a funny one. TJ and I pulled into a gas station to refuel the ambulamb. The song Wake me up before you go go began to play. TJ turned the radio up to blaring and turned on the loud speaker. He began to dance at a furious pace around the ambulamb, it was hilarious. TJ will be missed. We had some good times. Good Bye my old friend.
